

Serving produce as the center of the plate is especially applicable to the healthcare sector—try this satisfying cauliflower steak with hearty mushrooms and onions.

Trends

- Healthy food doesn't have to be bland—utilize the abundance of herbs and spices that are hot on today's menus (curry, fresh mint, harissa...) to make delicious dishes that still meet dietary guidelines.
- Visual impressions matter, so be sure to plate recipes with a variety of color and finesse.
- Pressed juices are fresh: make them from whole fruits and vegetables such as apples, beets, kale, carrots, cucumbers, and mangoes.
- Use meat as a condiment, rather than the center of the plate, to lower cholesterol and saturated fat content—focus meals on fiber- and vitamin-rich fruits and vegetables.
- Asian flavors are trending in all sectors—good for healthcare that many of the classic dishes are also made with cleaner techniques like steaming and stir-frying.
- Lighten up juices with seltzer or soda water—fewer calories and more exciting bubbles!
